Dear Harold:

Thank you for returning the typescript so early and for taking the time out of your busy work to read something so minor. I frankly thought you would not be able to read it at this time, and if you were able to, might not have the time to write upon it as you did. Your remarks, as usual, were to the point and invaluable.

I hope everything works out on Whitewash IV and that you can swing the individuals to your view.

I closely followed the accounts of the Ray trial, but I had read Frame-Up and that gave me a decided advantage over the general reader. I have been closely scouring the journals and magazines waiting to spy wrap up stories.

Best regards

David Wrone
